

Legislature in Expiring Throes

5th Session of State Lawmakers Will Breathe its Last Tonight and Pass Into History—Big Irrigation Measure The Most Important Piece of Legislation That Has Been Enacted—Sanctuary Will Soon Be Over.

The fifth session of the Legislature of the state of Utah is now in its expiring throes. It will end tonight and pass into history. In the matter of the selection of bills and consideration of important measures it will compare favorably with its predecessors. It has passed one measure of far-reaching importance, one that will probably overshadow all other legislation of the present session. That is the big irrigation measure. There has been little to do today. Actually a waiting game has been played. What is wanted more than anything else is the return from committee of the bill for the irrigation of the San Juan river. There are many of these bills that the committee have been perspiring like the man in the Turkish bath. But they know that at the end of the session the committee will have to go home. Very likely they will be here after Monday.

RESOLVING IN BITTERNESS.

The strained relations between the senate and the house have been more apparent during this session of the legislature than at any previous session. This condition, which has been perfectly apparent, has grown more acute since the opening of the session. The senate has been like a yawning wound, and the house has been like a few reasonably strong men.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE TODAY.

The house convened at 10 o'clock this morning and S. B. 12, Senator Barber's bill for the irrigation of the San Juan river, was the first thing on the agenda. The house struck out the provisions requiring the senate to pass the bill, and made other amendments, after which it passed.

August Krauss killed his wife and children with a hammer, and then cut his own throat.

The Deaf Are Made to Hear.

By Means of an Invention of Miller Reese Hutchison—Consists of Ear Piece, Transmitter and Electric Battery—Successfully Tried on Three Children.

New York, March 14.—By means of an invention of Miller Reese Hutchison, a young Alabamian, who was recently decorated by Queen Alexandra for his efforts in behalf of the deaf, three children, deaf, dumb and blind, have been enabled to hear a pianist play Sousa marches, a phonograph reproduce the sounds and the sounds of their own voice uttering the words "mama," "papa," and "hello," in quavering childish treble.

THE EXPERIMENT.

The experiments were made at the laboratory of Mr. Hutchison and were witnessed by many persons.

The invention consists, primarily, of a transmitter, an ear piece and a small electric battery. By means of these instruments sound is projected into the ear in a manner to stimulate the auditory nerve. The volume of sound has nothing to do with the action of these instruments.

The penetrating quality of the electric sound wave apparently disregards the mechanism of the outer ear and affects the inner ear direct.

The first patient brought out to try the effects of the invention was Orris Benson, who is blind, deaf and dumb. A physician tried to make him hear in various ways, but all his efforts were vain. The little instrument was then slipped on the lad's ear, the current switched on, and Mr. Hutchison said in an ordinary tone "Papa." The youth worked his fingers rapidly in the sign language.

He says he can hear something but does not know what it is," remarked Prof. Van Tassel, who was in charge of the children. The current was made stronger. The youth's eye balls were raised and he smiled. Then he tried to repeat the syllable and in a quavering treble cried shrilly "Pah-Pah." Noticing that the patient was becoming quite excited over his novel experience, Mr. Hutchison suggested that one of the girls be brought into the reception room.

She could not hear a sound, no matter how loud, but when she had the ear piece of the instrument fastened to her head and the pianist at the end of the room began to play a Sousa march her cheeks flushed and her fingers beat time on a table.

The deaf girl, born blind, deaf and dumb, clapped her hands in ecstasy when she heard her own voice cry "mamma" and reached out wistfully toward the piano when the musician stopped playing and the new harmonies died out of her ear, but lingered vividly in her memory.

BURDICK MURDER CASE INQUEST.

Buffalo, March 14.—The inquest into the murder of Edwin L. Burdick was begun in the police court here today before Judge Murphy.

Among the first witnesses to appear were Mrs. S. H. Payne, Miss Barrett, the stenographer who boards with Mrs. Payne and A. Carlson, another boarder at the Payne residence. Mrs. Payne was accompanied by counsel. Only one witness at a time was admitted into the courtroom.

Dr. Howland, assistant medical examiner, was the first witness. He handed to Judge Murphy the report of the medical examination of the death of Burdick, which stated the cause of the death.

"Under the law we are compelled to hold this inquest," said Judge Murphy. "We charge no one with this crime. The purpose of this investigation is to lay this crime if possible at the door of some one. Paul and family left Liverpool for Zion. The guests as part of that family were Mrs. Priscilla Jennings and Mrs. Susan Brooks and daughter Priscilla, and as guests of honor and old-time friends, Wm. Edgington, just returned from a winter visit to Teton, O. R. Savage and Mrs. Libbie Stains and David Sheedon.

It was 50 years in January last since Brother Edgington left Liverpool and over 40 since Brother C. R. Savage left. Both have been "polite" men, whose names are written in imperishable letters and their presence made a flow of experiences and reminiscences which was equalled by their sisters, who mentioned. All had an enjoyable time and the chief actors at least shall have increased the majority on the other side.

"Honor thy father and mother that thy days may be long in the land" was the first commandment with promise and that has been done in any better way than by rehearsing their history. Reading their great "Red Letter days" and then emulating their integrity, patience and faith.

This was the first sale of sugar for Europe in 25 years with the exception of 5 per cent out of the output which formerly went to Spain, but which ceased at the time of the war between Spain and the United States. This new European demand is said to be due to poor crops in the island and the abolition of the European bounties.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN RETURNS.

Colonial Secretary Lands in Southampton from South Africa.

London, March 14.—"Southampton" welcomed home Britain's empire "flesman" in huge letters surrounded and intertwined with Union Jacks and Stars and Stripes, was the motto that first greeted the arrival of Mr. Chamberlain and Mrs. Chamberlain on landing at Southampton today from South Africa.

The travelers had a magnificent greeting. The quays were elaborately decorated, the ships crowded round and bow fashions, rounds of cheering and the blowing of whistles and sirens greeted the liner Orman as she passed.

The Southampton water with Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain accompanied by Lord Selborne, first lord of the admiralty, standing on the promenade.

Subsequently Mr. Chamberlain and his party took a train to London, where a large crowd awaited their arrival. Premier Balfour and practically the whole cabinet were present at Waterloo railway station to meet Mr. Chamberlain. The greetings which he received were most cordial.

Mrs. Chamberlain came in for a full share of the welcome. Special chairs were reserved for her in the grandstand of the deputation from Birmingham, which went out to meet the Orman in the Solent, were especially mentioned. Referring to the Birmingham deputation, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I thank you very much for including, as indeed you should, the name of my wife. It is indeed true that her companionship has been of the greatest help to me. In fact I hardly know how I could have gotten through the task I undertook but for her co-operation."

Cotton Market Greatly Excited.

New York, March 14.—There was great excitement at the opening of the cotton market today. Prices advanced from 26 to 27 points at the outset on a surprise furnished by Liverpool. March rose from 9.52 bid to 9.55, after closing yesterday 9.52. May opened at 9.52 bid and soon rose to 9.55. It closed last night at 9.58. Some after the opening there was a reaction. The May option declined 12 points from the best. The covering movement which followed the opening jump produced a degree of excitement scarcely equalled at any time in the late bull campaign.

Private advices attributed the English rise to the re-appearance of Egyptian speculators in the Liverpool market.

Cecil Rhodes Scholarships.

Dr. Parkin, Direct Representative of Trustees, Here Conferring on the Matter of the Appointment of Two Utah Students to Oxford—Examining Committee Will Pass Upon Their Qualifications.

Dr. G. R. Parkin, the direct representative of the trustees of the will of the late Cecil Rhodes in regard to the awarding of free scholarships to Oxford university, arrived in Salt Lake last evening from San Francisco, and this morning held a consultation with President Kingsbury of the University of Utah, at which the subject of the appointment of two students from this state was discussed at length. The most important matter considered was a method of choosing the students who will receive the Rhodes scholarships.

To Dr. Parkin has been entrusted the delicate task of devising a method of awarding the scholarships throughout the United States, Canada, South Africa and Europe. To that end it is necessary that he should meet and consult with the leading educators of both countries, and that a plan may be adopted that will meet the requirements of each particular locality in order that the best results in the selection of a representative student upon whom the scholarship will be conferred may be obtained. He has already consulted with educators in 12 of the leading educational centers of the United States, having held conferences at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Kansas City, Atlanta, San Francisco and other large cities. He will hold a conference at Denver on his return trip to the east and one in New York state, after which he will sail for Europe and, after a few weeks, thence to South Africa.

It is the idea of Dr. Parkin to appoint a committee of three prominent educators in each state, of which the president of the state university shall be the chairman, whose duty it shall be to pass upon the qualifications of the candidates for the scholarships and make recommendations to the trustees in regard to the appointments. This will take the matter entirely out of the hands of the government of the various states and will prevent all possible political play-acting any part in the selection of the appointees.

The advisability of relieving the government of all responsibility in connection with the matter was forcibly impressed upon the mind of Dr. Parkin by a statement made by President Roosevelt at a dinner in Washington at which the former was present. In a conversation with the president in relation to the scholarships Dr. Parkin said, "Now, Mr. President, don't you think it would be advisable to place the matter of these appointments in the hands of the governors of each state?"

Not a one of them," was the president's quick reply. "You can't trust them. Why even my best friend, Governor Taft, if that matter were entrusted to him he would say, 'Now, how can I use this to the best advantage for the state? No, sir, this is an academic matter, keep it academic!'"

Following the advice of President Roosevelt, Dr. Parkin has decided that the leading educators shall take charge of the selection of the students upon the qualifications of the candidates and thereby a better result will be obtained. Each state in the Union is entitled to two scholarships, which, according to the terms of the will, are perpetual. The first year only one persons will be sent from each state, but thereafter each will always be represented by two persons. The requirements of the candidates are naturally of the very highest standard in order to enter such a school as Oxford university, and in addition to that there are other qualifications mentioned in the terms of the will, which make it imperative that the honor shall be conferred upon the highest, physical and mental type of American youth.

Dr. Parkin will resume his journey eastward on this afternoon's train.

LOADING WOOL IS NOW ILLEGAL

As each day passes the railroad officials are discovering new features hidden in the bill embracing interstate commerce bill, now generally known as the Elkins' law. The measure reads that it shall be unlawful under penalty of a heavy fine to favor any shipper with "any concession or discrimination by any device whatever." This is already creating great grief among the wool-buyers of the east and a corresponding amount of joy among the local railroadmen.

In no other states in the Union do the conditions prevail that are prevalent during the wool season in Utah, Wyoming and Idaho. So great has competition been in the past that each year broader concessions have been made to the buyers in order to secure the shipments of wool. The wool-buyers have been given mileage books and have gone around the country accompanied by a following of railroad freight agents, all eager to get the clip for their respective roads.

In the haste for business the freight men have pocketed their pride and resorted to all kinds of schemes, until even the honest wool-buyers have been given mileage books and have gone around the country accompanied by a following of railroad freight agents, all eager to get the clip for their respective roads.

SPEAKER HULL MAKES REPLY

The house proceedings yesterday afternoon and evening were composed largely of efforts to adjust differences regarding the appropriation bill which finally came out all right. A number of bills were killed, some were reported back signed by the governor and some were passed.

The evening session was enlivened by a sharp riot on the part of Speaker Hull to a charge made against him by President Allison of the senate in the afternoon executive session. The speaker took the floor on a question of privilege and asked that the chief clerk read what President Allison had said. This done, the speaker read the following, Representative Hamlin occupying the chair:

SPEAKER HULL'S REPLY.

Mr. Speaker—I would like to apologize to you for having the speech just presented read if it were not for the fact that it was delivered on the floor of the senate by the president of that august body. Recognition of the dignity of this office is my excuse for requesting that such language be even read in this presence.

Such blackguardism might do credit to the denizen of Billingsgate, but is certainly not of the grade of the speaker of such a dignified body as the senate of the state of Utah.

So far as my record as speaker of your honorable body is concerned, you are the judges.

In regard to the assertions relating to charges said to have been made by me against the state industrial school, and that I have been inspired by other motives, I will simply say they are absolutely and wilfully false, z z z

Concerning my character and business ability, it may be well known in the community, as, happily, are also those of the president of the senate.

I have nothing but the sincerest sympathy for any man who could so far forget his dignity as to make such a speech.

I thank you for your attention and will make no further answer, realizing that the truth of my remarks that "He who lies down with a dog must expect to get up with fleas," and that "It is a waste of labor to shave an ass."

There was considerable clapping of hands when he got through.

Among the hard fought measures that passed was Representative McFalls' smelter nuisance bill, which provides for the payment of actual damages, costs and attorney's fees.

During the afternoon Representative Dine occupied the speaker's chair for quite a while, and demonstrated his qualifications as a presiding officer.

STATE HIGHWAYS BILL.

Representative Roberts of Cache succeeded in passing his bill providing for a system of state highways and the expenditure of road money under the direction of the state engineer. This was Mr. Roberts' pet measure and he has been using low all the session waiting for a favorable opportunity to introduce it. It came yesterday and he made a good speech in its behalf and it carried by a vote of 24 to 11.

COVALESCING.

The numerous friends of Dr. David
